*North Vietnam - South Vietnam: Hanoi is giving heavy propaganda play to the Viet Cong shelling of the Bien Hoa airfield.

A North Vietnamese radiobroadcast yesterday described the act as illustrating the determination of the "South Vietnamese People's Armed Forces" to step up their attacks to contribute to the defense of "the northern part of the Fatherland." The broadcast took pains to point up the strategic strike capability of the B-57s hit in the attack, and indicated an expectation that many other "brilliant" exploits would follow.

A reaction operation initiated by government forces following the Bien Hoa shelling searched the area north and east of the airfield, but terminated at sunset the next day without making contact. No significant Viet Cong military activity has been reported in the last 24 hours.

NOTES

Bolivia: Antigovernment disturbances have subsided, but the split between President Paz and Vice President Barrientos could cause new trouble at any time. *Barrientos remains unalterably opposed to Paz, and has been reported to be in contact with other dissident elements. For the moment, military leaders in La Paz assert they will remain loyal to the President, but those who may be disposed to back Barrientos are apparently held in line primarily by a desire to avoid identification with the extremists who fomented the recent violence7
